

1st Call for the Conference:

Coppice Forests in Europe: Ecosystem services, protection and nature conservation

Hosted by COST Action FP1301 EuroCoppice
University of Antwerp, Belgium, 15-17 June, 2016

Dear Colleagues,

There are many benefits, functions and unique characteristics of coppice forests related to protection, biodiversity and conservation, but these have been largely neglected by science and society throughout the past decades. It is the aim of this conference on “Coppice Forests in Europe: Ecosystem services and nature conservation” to help reverse this trend and bring these aspects of coppice forest into the spotlight.

A multitude of coppice forest topics, from cultural heritage, definitions and erosion protection to harvesting techniques, tree species ecology and ownership are being explored within the COST Action FP1301 Innovative management and multifunctional utilization of traditional coppice forests – an answer to future ecological, economic and social challenges in the European forestry sector (EuroCoppice). The Conference will not only build on the expertise gathered in the Action, but also reach out to and exchange with a wider audience, fostering discussions on coppice forests European-wide.

The conference will take place at the University of Antwerp from June 15th to 17th, 2016. The first day, June 15th, is reserved for EuroCoppice members for internal Action meetings. The conference and excursion will take place on the following two days, June 16th and 17th, and are open to interested scientists from outside the Action – an outline programme can be found below.

With this Call we invite all interested parties (from within or outside the Action) to submit an Abstract for the conference, outlining a proposed oral presentation or poster. Information and important deadline dates regarding abstract submission, as well as registration details and fees can also be found in this document.

As this is the first call for the conference, changes and updates will follow - please visit the EuroCoppice website (www.eurocoppice.uni-freiburg.de) for the most recent information. We are looking forward to diverse, interesting and thought-provoking contributions!

Session Themes

1. Coppicing and Biodiversity Conservation: promoting species diversity and endangered species in coppice forest habitat types; effects of conversion or restoration; implications for Natura 2000; surrogate silvicultural methods; impacts of harvesting; landscape aspects of species dispersal; coppices as reservoirs of genetic diversity.

2. Coppicing and Ecosystem Services (other than provisioning): preventing erosion and landslides; controlling greenhouse gas sequestration and emissions; resisting the ingress of invasive species, pests and pathogens; the importance for wildlife and pollinators; cultural heritage and historical aspects of coppice management.

3. Coppicing and Nature Conservation Policy and Legislation: legislation concerning the special treatment of coppice forests close to infrastructure; laws and regulations relating to coppice and forest protection, its soil, fauna and flora; cutting rules, girth limits, densities of standards, size of felling coupes, assessment of bio-indicators; recognised certification schemes.
